Annual Research Report 2012/13

Introduction

This report documents research outcomes achieved by De Montfort University's Department of Politics and Public Policy (PoPP) in the academic year 2012-13. Our research is concentrated predominantly in public policy, but encompasses international politics, political theory and pedagogy within the discipline of politics. Our work epitomises the DMU mission to deliver research excellence with impact, covering everything from developments in governance theory and critical urban studies to high-level research partnerships with policy makers, advisory and consultancy projects for central government and other prominent public sector stakeholders. Departmental research is channelled through three dedicated policy research units. We highlight notable achievements in each area:

The Centre for Comparative Housing Research (CCHR) delivers high quality consultancy, research and teaching in housing policy. Members of staff are Dr Tim Brown (Director), Dr Peter King, Ros Lishman, Professor Mike Oxley and Dr Jo Richardson. The CCHR team recently won an ESRC Knowledge Exchange grant totalling £148,000 for a comparative project, Boosting the Supply of Affordable Rented Housing in the UK: Learning from other Countries. Led by Dr Jo Richardson, the ESRC seminar series Creating space and place for Gypsies, Travellers and Roma concluded with a memorable event in the House of Lords, hosted by Baroness Whitaker and the Roma, Gypsy Traveller All Party Parliamentary Group. This event was reported in the ESRC Britain in 2014 magazine <http://www.esrc.ac.uk/news-and-events/publications/britain-in/>.

The Health Policy Research Unit is a university-wide network carrying out multi-disciplinary academic and policy research on health issues. Core PoPP staff are Professor Rob Baggott (Director) and Dr Kathryn Jones, with membership from across the university. Research highlights include Baggott's British Academy sponsored investigation of the Cuban health system (in partnership with former colleague George Lambie) and his work with Jones on health consumer and patient organisations/patient and public involvement in health, which is influencing current policy thinking. In 2012 Jones was accepted onto the first cohort of DMU's highly competitive future research leaders programme. Notable publications in the past year include Baggott's monograph Partnerships for Health and Wellbeing (Palgrave).

The Local Governance Research Unit is a centre of excellence for theoretically informed, robust and rigorous policy relevant research into British and comparative urban and local governance. PoPP staff members are: Professor Colin Copus (Director), Professor Jonathan Davies and Dr Steven Griggs, together with associates Frances Jones, Roger Lawrence and Ines Newman. In early 2013, Steven Griggs concluded the ESRC Knowledge Transfer Project, The Ensuring Council, a partnership with the Association for Public Service Excellence. This project was graded outstanding by the ESRC and influences policy deliberations throughout local government. The Political and Constitutional Reform Select Committee has now adopted the code of practice for central-local relations written by Colin Copus, known as “Magna Carta 2.0”. The code proposes to enshrine the independence of local government in the British constitution. In September 2013, Jonathan Davies hosted the Urban Studies Foundation funded conference Interrogating Urban Crisis: Governance, Contestation and Critique. The conference attracted scholars and activists from all over the world to explore the potential for comparative studies of crisis-governance in cities. Notable academic publications include Davies’s contribution to the 40th Anniversary special issue of Policy & Politics (41:4), titled Just do it differently? Everyday making, Marxism, and the struggle against Neoliberalism, and a forthcoming special issue of Urban Studies co-edited by Griggs with Ismael Blanco (Autonomous University of Barcelona) and Helen Sullivan (Melbourne) on Explaining Local Governance: ‘Transformation’ through Neoliberalism.

Department of Politics & Public Policy Annual Research Report 2012/13

The Department has also developed a number of successful crosscutting projects, forging links between researchers across the department and the University. Led by Head of department, Professor Alasdair Blair, DMU won €75,000 from the European Commission to establish the Jean Monnet Centre of Excellence (2013-16). This award was one of only three to UK Universities in 2013. We received a further £22,000 from the DMU Higher Education Innovation Fund to boost the work of the new Jean Monnet Centre. Building links between social sciences and the humanities, Dr Clodagh Harrington organised an international conference in May 2013, The State of the Union: Challenges and Expectations for the Obama Administration.

The remainder of this report lists all departmental publications in 2012-13, research grants, conferences and seminar presentations and current PhD Students.
